

Subscribe | Store | About | Submit | Advertise | Distribute

“The Great West Coast Migration” PangeaSeed Benefit Art Tour

by Nastia Voynovskaya Posted on July 4, 2012

Laura Ball

To raise awareness for the plight of sharks and the Earth’s underwater ecosystems because of unchecked fishing practices, the Tokyo-based non-profit organization PangeaSeed is kicking off a month-long art tour beginning at Roq la Rue Gallery in Seattle on July 13. The huge group show “The Great West Coast Migration” will make its way down the West Coast stopping at various galleries, and the stellar roster of artists will undoubtedly draw big crowds for this noble cause.

The line-up includes over 100 internationally-known artists, and many of our favorites that have been featured in print and online — like Kelly Allen, Dave Kinsey, Brett Amory, Sylvia Ji, Greg Simkins and Scott Hove, to name a few — will have work in the show. For a complete list of the participating artists check the PangeaSeed website.

“The Great West Coast Migration” will take place at the following galleries:

Roq la Rue in Seattle, WA July 13-15

Grass Hut Co. in Portland, OR July 20-22

Spoke Art in San Francisco, CA July 27-28

Lebasse Projects in Los Angeles, CA August 2-4

The Artery in Costa Mesa, CA August 10-12

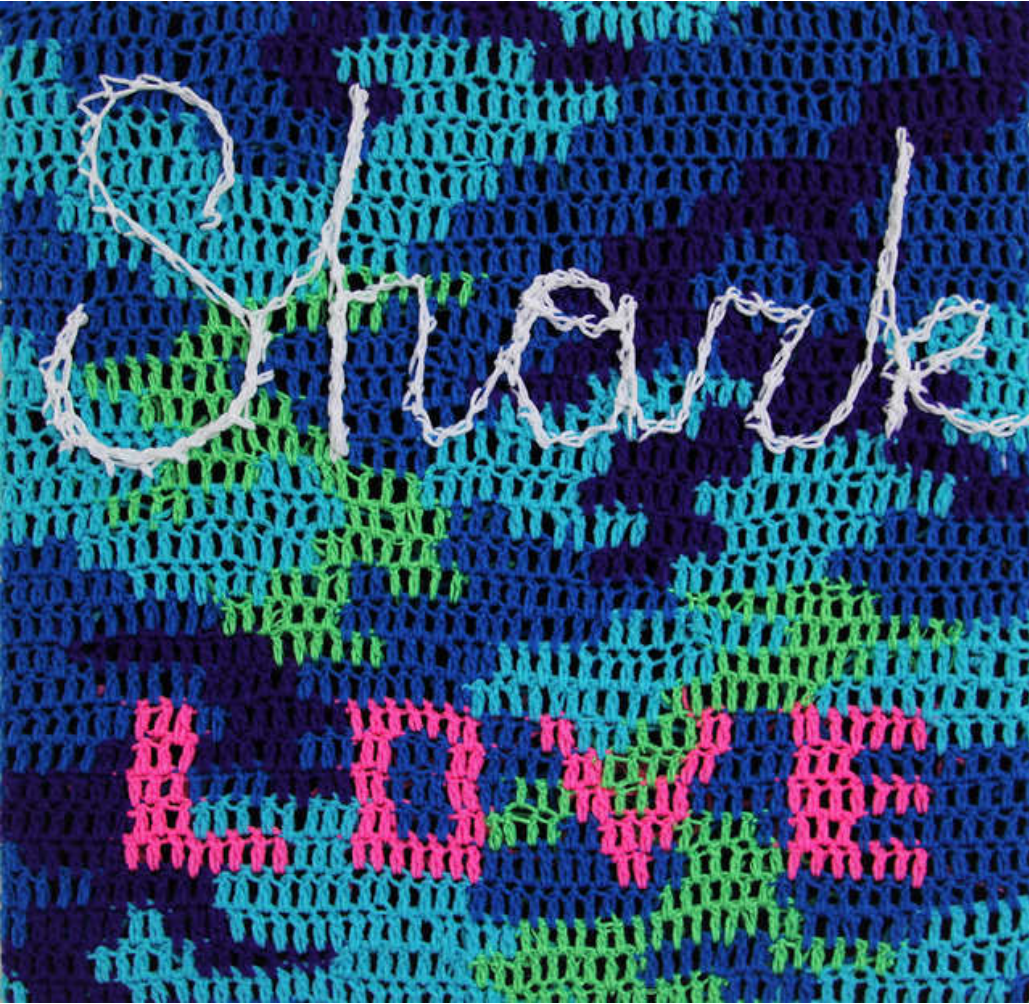

Space 4 Art in San Diego, CA August 18-19

Dave Kinsey

Scott Hove

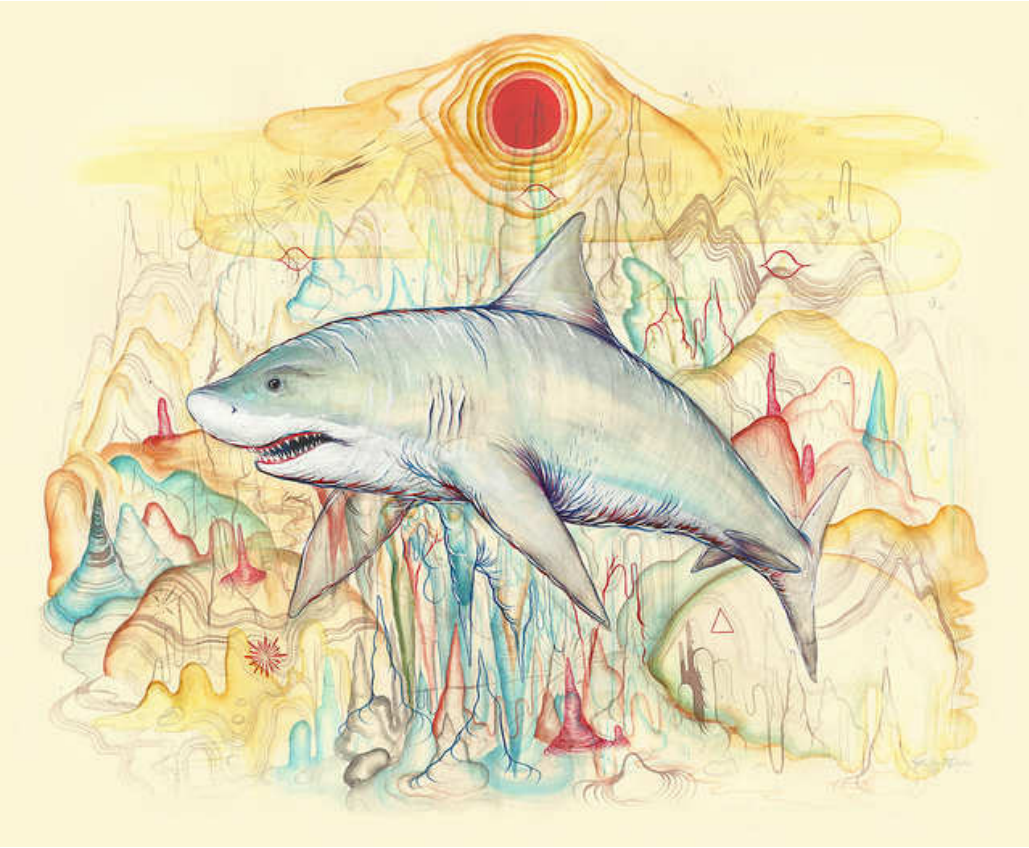

Olek

Kozyndan

Kelly Allen

Justin Lovato

Jim Mazza

Adrian Monahan

Amy Guidry

SHARE